

10 Memes

Do you like the memes below? I hope they make you laugh and at the same time, I hope they make you think. So much can be communicated with a picture and captions, which in the case of the memes we show you, are snarky and often outright funny. These memes come from one of my favorite websites, Patriotpost.US, which is dedicated to the fundamental American values expressed in the Constitution and its Bill of Rights, and to our God-given duty to uphold it.

I really love many of the memes, but sometimes they contain references to TV shows or to celebrities that I've never heard of so I don't understand them. In the interest of letting you know with clarity why I picked these, I thought I'd comment on some of them.

Linda Grummel

Robin Hood is one of the most misunderstood and misused stories I know of. As a little kid growing up in Canada, I was an avid fan of Robin Hood. The modern day story line is that Robin Hood stole from the rich to give to the poor, and it's used to justify the huge welfare state we have built that has ruined families and destroyed the humanity of so many. The truth of Robin Hood is what the meme portrays: Robin Hood took back the ill-gotten wealth that the rich stole from the poor, and then he redistributed it to the poor whose it was in the first place. Robin Hood was a hero, not an outlaw!

In case you don't recognize him, the guy holding the chainsaw is Elon Musk, and the guy with thumbs up is Javier Milei, the President of Argentina. He has recently emerged into the world's spotlight for being elected president out of nowhere, and then doing what he promised to do: severely cutting down the expensive Argentine government that was sinking the whole country into the mire. Sound familiar? Milei used a chainsaw as his symbol during the Argentine election. He became a supporter and acquaintance of Trump and attended the inauguration. Then when Musk created DOGE, Milei brought him a chainsaw to use, so to speak. The icing on the Milei cake: he loves and supports Israel. What a character both he and Elon Musk are!

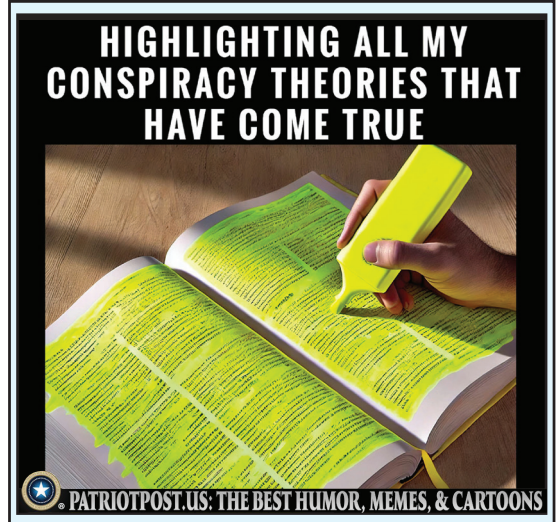

Well, since we're taking verses out of context . . .

"Truly, truly, I say to you, he who does not enter the sheepfold by the door but climbs in by another way, that man is a thief and a robber." ~ Jesus

I don't know if someone really wrote on the posts of the border fence the scripture verse shown there, but it wouldn't surprise me. The answer is classic: he who doesn't enter by the door is a thief and a robber. Yes, Jesus did say both of those things, and yes, the first is out of context. Nothing of the Bible makes sense without the wisdom God's Holy Spirit gives you as you read and experience it. You know illegal entry into the U.S. is wrong. Misusing Jesus' words doesn't change that.

Well, this one seems fairly obvious – the crooks at Fort Knox paint a bunch of bricks gold so it looks like the gold that should be there. I hope that this is just a meme, not a reality!

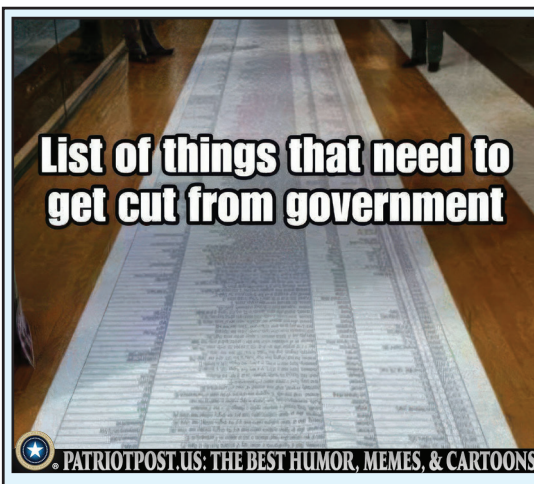

Last but not least, it IS surprising how many things that we thought were conspiracy theories held by right-wing wackos have actually proven to be true. One of the most obvious is that Joe Biden was well into his dementia and was a puppet or a front for the Democrat party to keep control of the government. There is much left to unravel, but there is no doubt about its truth.

As you may see, these and other memes do contain much truth, as we laugh, or not, over the sad situations represented in some of them. The most important meme in this batch we've saved for last:

Before and after Doge – it reminds me of Cal Trans with their orange vests, standing around watching one or two guys doing all the work while the rest lean on their shovels. We could use some DOGE around here, don't you think?

I wish that the list of things needing to be cut by government included California laws and regulations, but probably the list of California's things needing to be cut out is at least as long as the federal government's. I'm sure many of you have encountered idiot rules or costly requirements when trying to build a house, or ... the list goes on and on. The first thing that should be cut in California is Gavin Newsom.

I mistook those orangish round things in this picture for oranges, so I didn't understand it at first. Then, duh, I realized that the round things are EGGS! Hahahahahaha. Yep, they're that expensive.

I love the expression on Donald Trump's face as he approves the accusation against him.

LVEDA Meeting
(Lucerne Valley Economic Development Association)

Monday, MARCH 31st
5:00 pm at the Moose Lodge
on Foothill Road, just west of Tradepost Road.

LVEDA provides an important community forum recognized by County, State, and Local Representatives. Supports real economic development consistent with our rural goals. Opposes projects that harm our land-use integrity and quality of life.

Is something bugging you?
COME TO THE NEXT MEETING TO EXPRESS YOUR OPINION!